

Probing quantum gravity with gravitational waves

We scrutinize the possibility of using gravitational waves measurements of the tidal Love number in order to probe the structure of gravastars, boson stars and other compact objects, in order to probe quantum gravity effects.